Robert Henderson sent Experience in Software, President, Roy Nierenberg, this unsolicited letter. It would be a shame to dilute the enthusiasm of Mr. Henderson's praise, so we've included it verbatim below.

“Thank you for making my life a little easier.”

-Robert Henderson

The Letter

Dear Roy:

Finally! After better than a decade of pulling my hair out at the start of a project, someone has produced an easy-to-use, straightforward, logical program to help get my project off on the right foot. My grandmother instilled these words of wisdom in me years ago--"Go as far as you can see. When you get there you can see further."

How true this is. All too often, though, we find ourselves overwhelmed by our impending tasks and cannot figure out WHERE to start. Project KickStart makes this dreaded task a snap! By prompting me to identify obstacles, and offering the opportunity to assign people to tasks, it turns chaos into plan.

The link to Microsoft Project makes scheduling a breeze! Never before has scheduling entry been so intuitive and simple. Simply put, people who do scheduling should not be without Project Kickstart. When I want my scheduling software to tell me WHEN, I first use Project Kickstart to tell me HOW.

Thank you for making my life a little easier. I look forward to further developments from Experience In Software, Inc.

Very truly yours,
