The Challenge

Plan multiple, disparate projects for a new online training center.

The Solution

Connie Hearty found herself in the frightening and all-too-common position of having to plan multiple projects and events to roll out a new online business training center for the University of Toronto. Connie says, “I am a courseware designer/manager for a new online business training centre, SkillsForYou. As such, the task fell to me to plan the implementation of various components of our new centre.”

Connie didn't know where to turn, but after a quick search on the Internet, she found Project Kickstart. She adds, “The day after I downloaded the trial version of your software, I was so excited about your program that I ordered the full version. Project KickStart helped to turn a planning nightmare into an afternoon's work (it did take more than 30 minutes, but the project is a large one).”

“Your product is a life-saver. Congratulations on a job well done.”

For Connie Hearty at the University of Toronto, the benefits of Project Kickstart are clear:
